The treatments are designed to revitalise and relax guests during their stay and are available alongside a whole host of other wellness activities at The Sarojin including yoga and meditation.

For centuries, Thai people have used the natural healing properties of local herbs, trees, flowers and fruits to purify and rejuvenate their bodies and minds. Purification of the spirit is believed to be achieved by combining these rich earthy ingredients into remedies that enhance your feeling of wellness.

All essential oils used are made in Thailand, from 100% natural ingredients. Sunflower oil is used as a base, which is renowned for its natural healing properties, combined with additional oils that offer specific holistic benefits.

For example, use Kob Koon oil (a blend of sunflower, plai, ylang ylang and lavender) to reduce anxiety and nerves, Jai Dee oil (a combination of sunflower, lemongrass, lavender and cedarwood) to reduce stress and Jai Yen oil (a blend of sunflower, mint and eucalyptus) to give a feeling of refreshment during the treatments.
